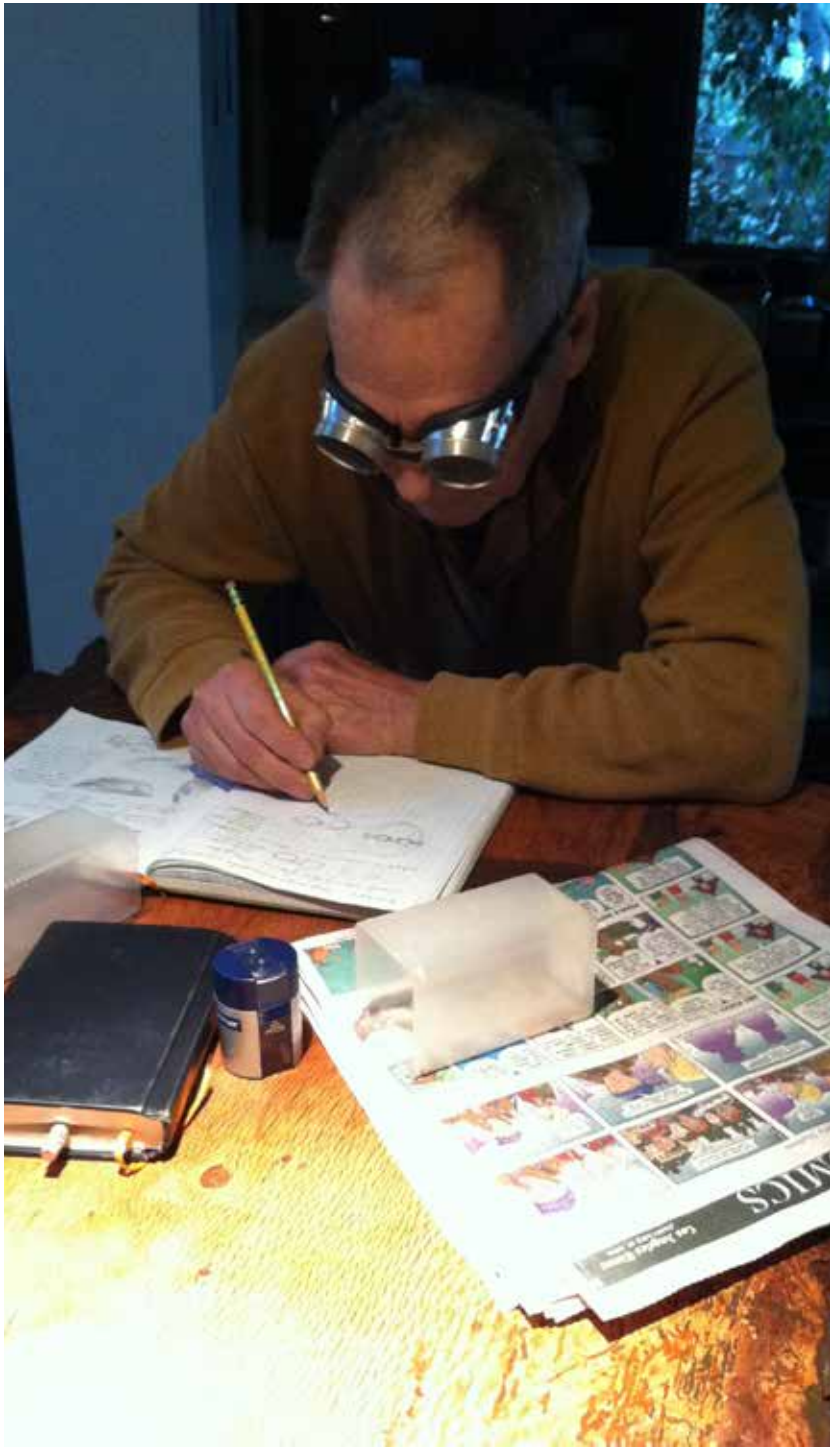
GLASSES FOR THE THIRD EYE

01.24.2016 Ahde Lahti



This is a French Sculptor who has a nice feeling for the intimate. Gorge Jeanclos, has the face that is appealing.

Next is a head from the Brother's Quay stop frame animation, "street of Crocodiles".

Again an image which seems to see everything.

It is impossible to show the third Eye, because it is not material.

I'm using this type because it reminds me of old wire rim glasses.

The stop animation uses a compass and the image brought me to glasses, Why?

The Italian mask to the right seems to have a lot of life.

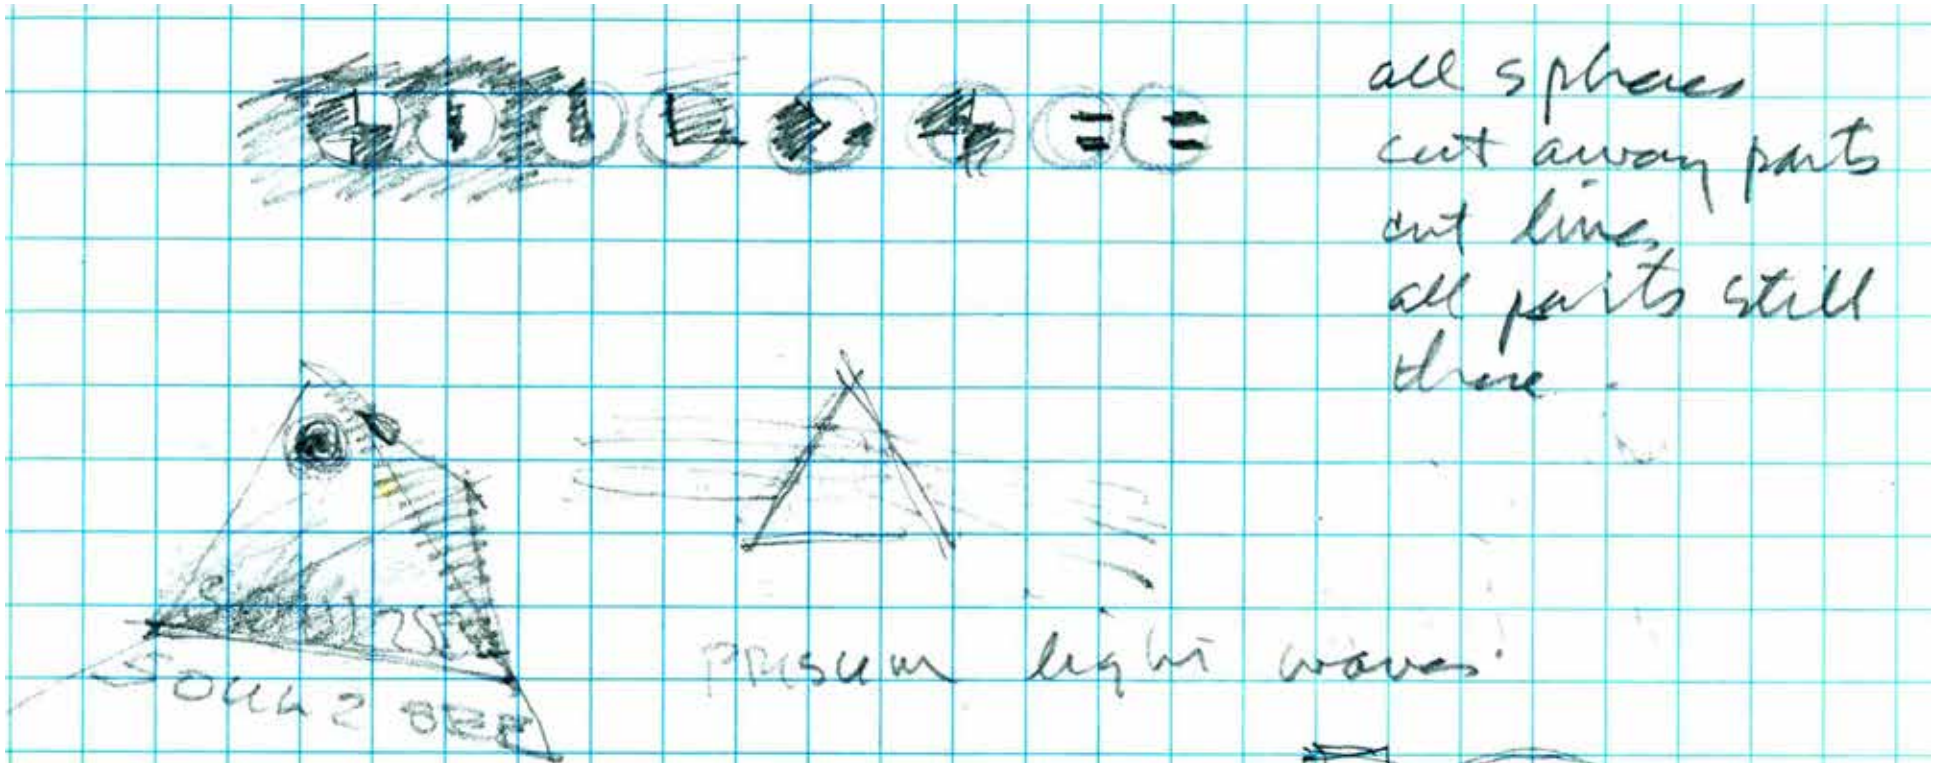
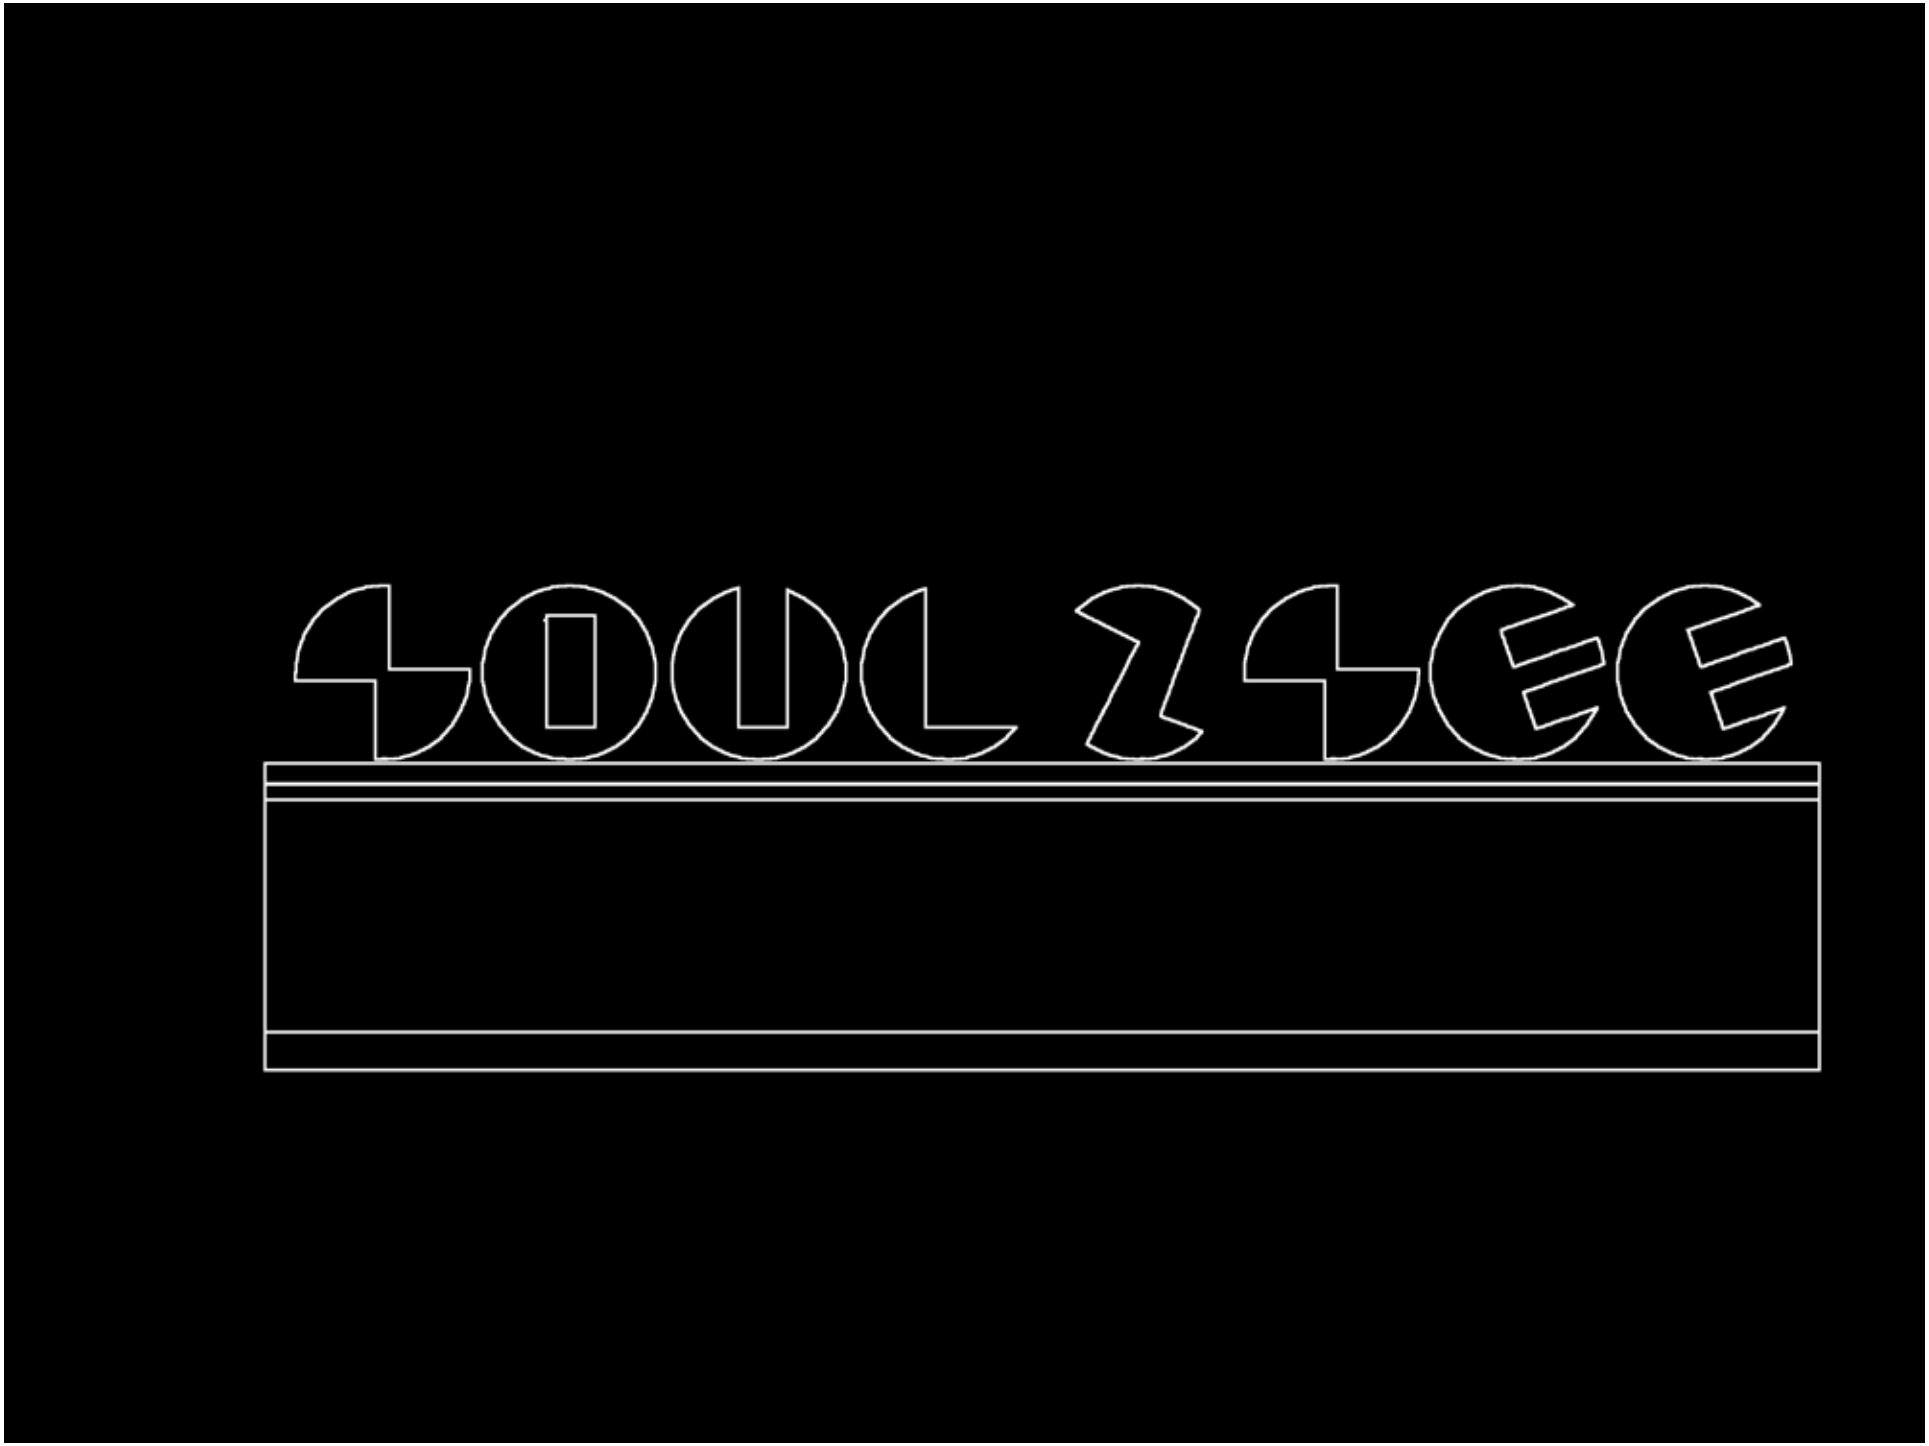
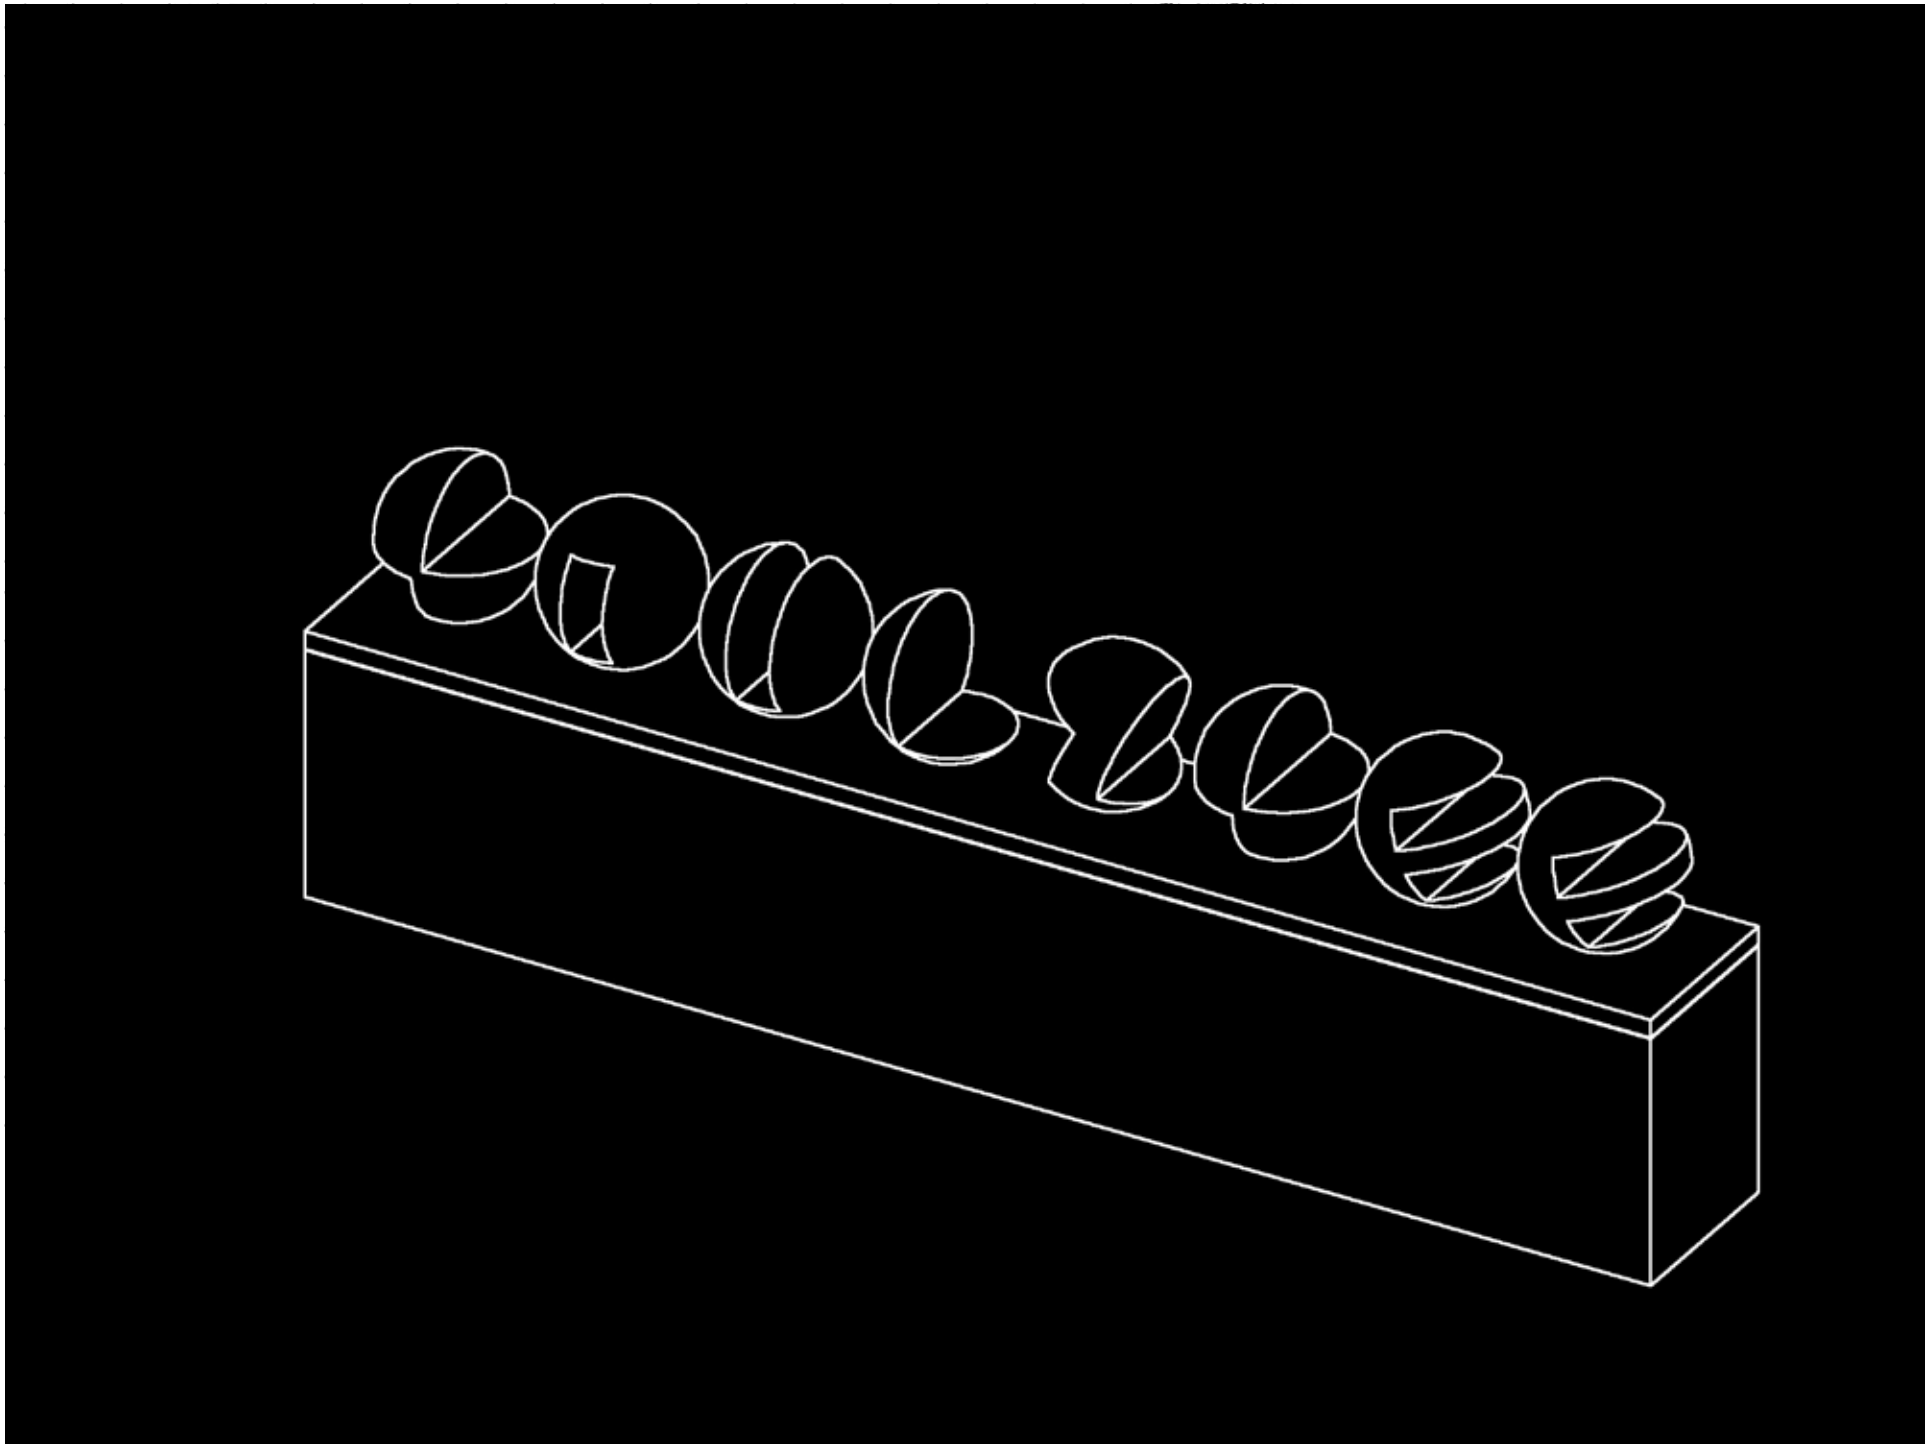
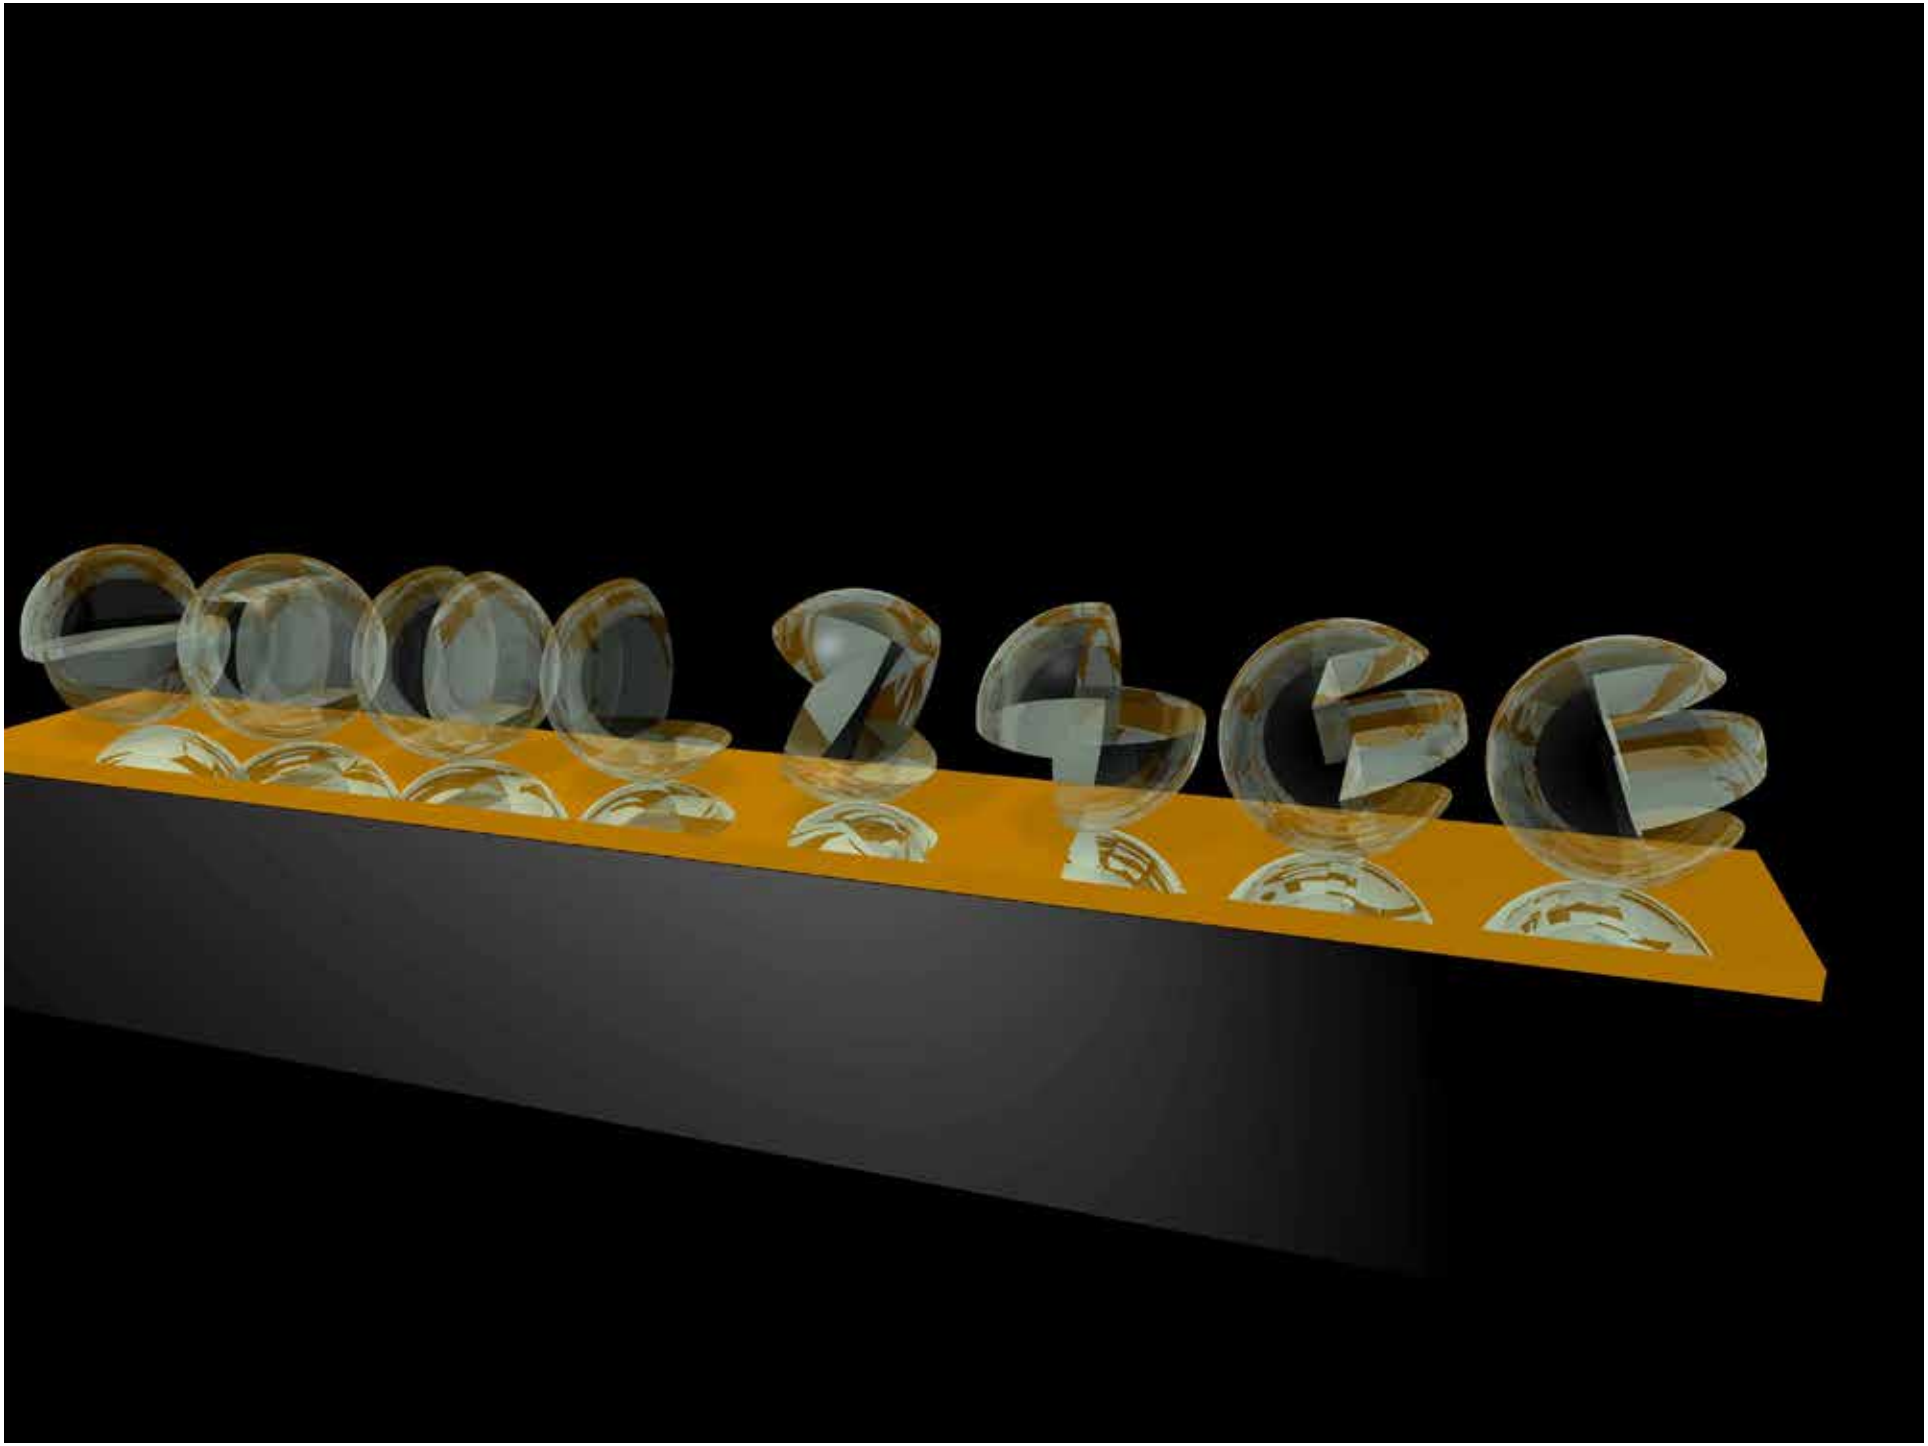
I began sketching the face with glasses. Then needed a face, so I went back to a maybe Navajo Kachina Doll face. But the sketching of a third eye brought me to the idea of glass, glasses. Here are some ideas for typeface in a logo.

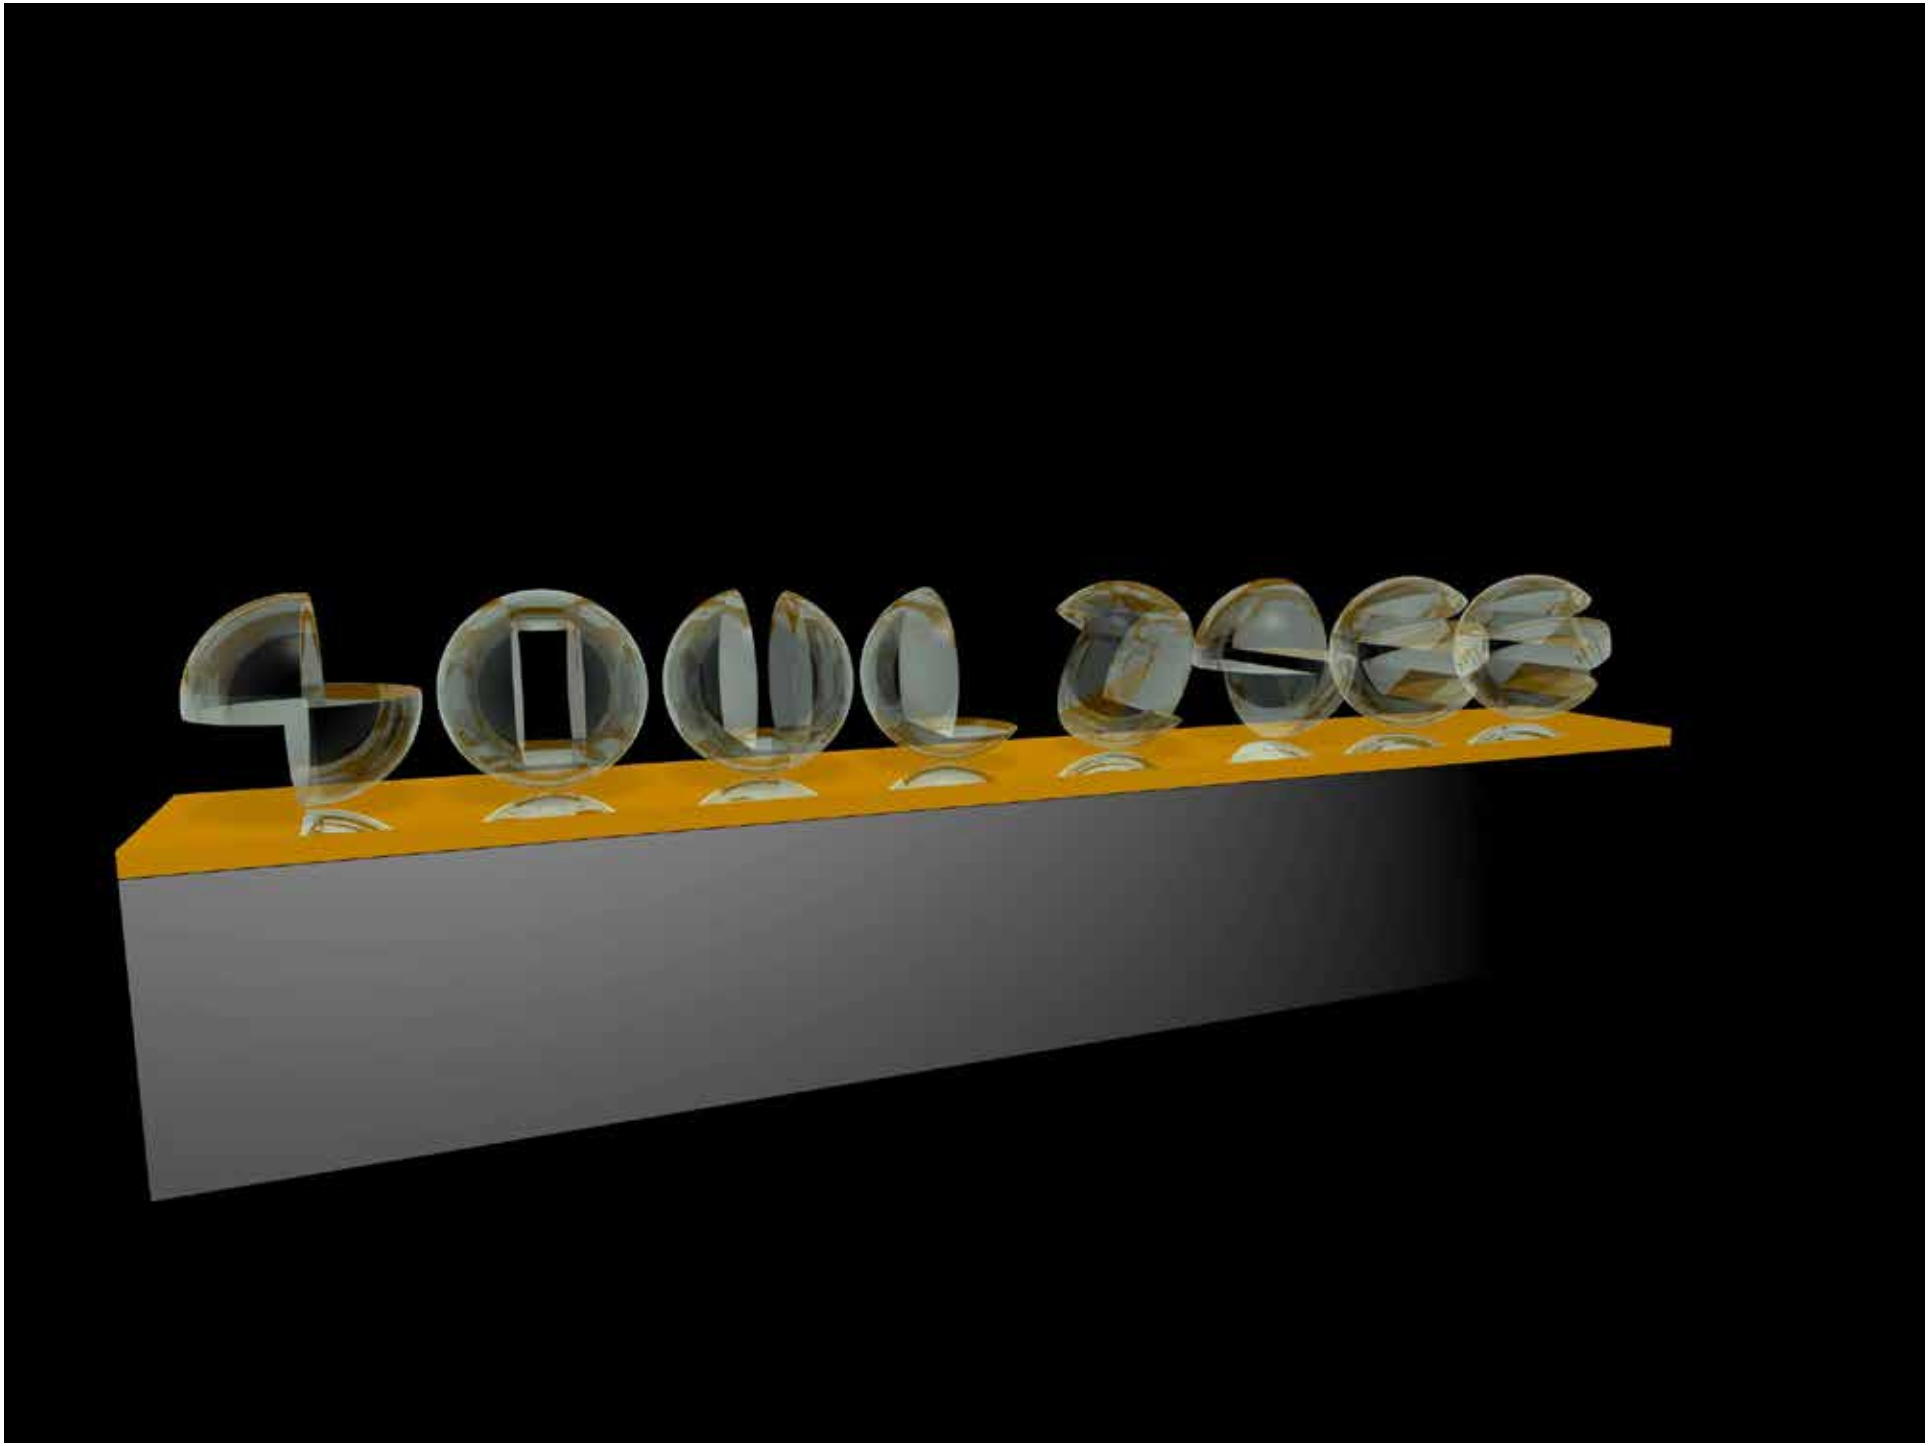


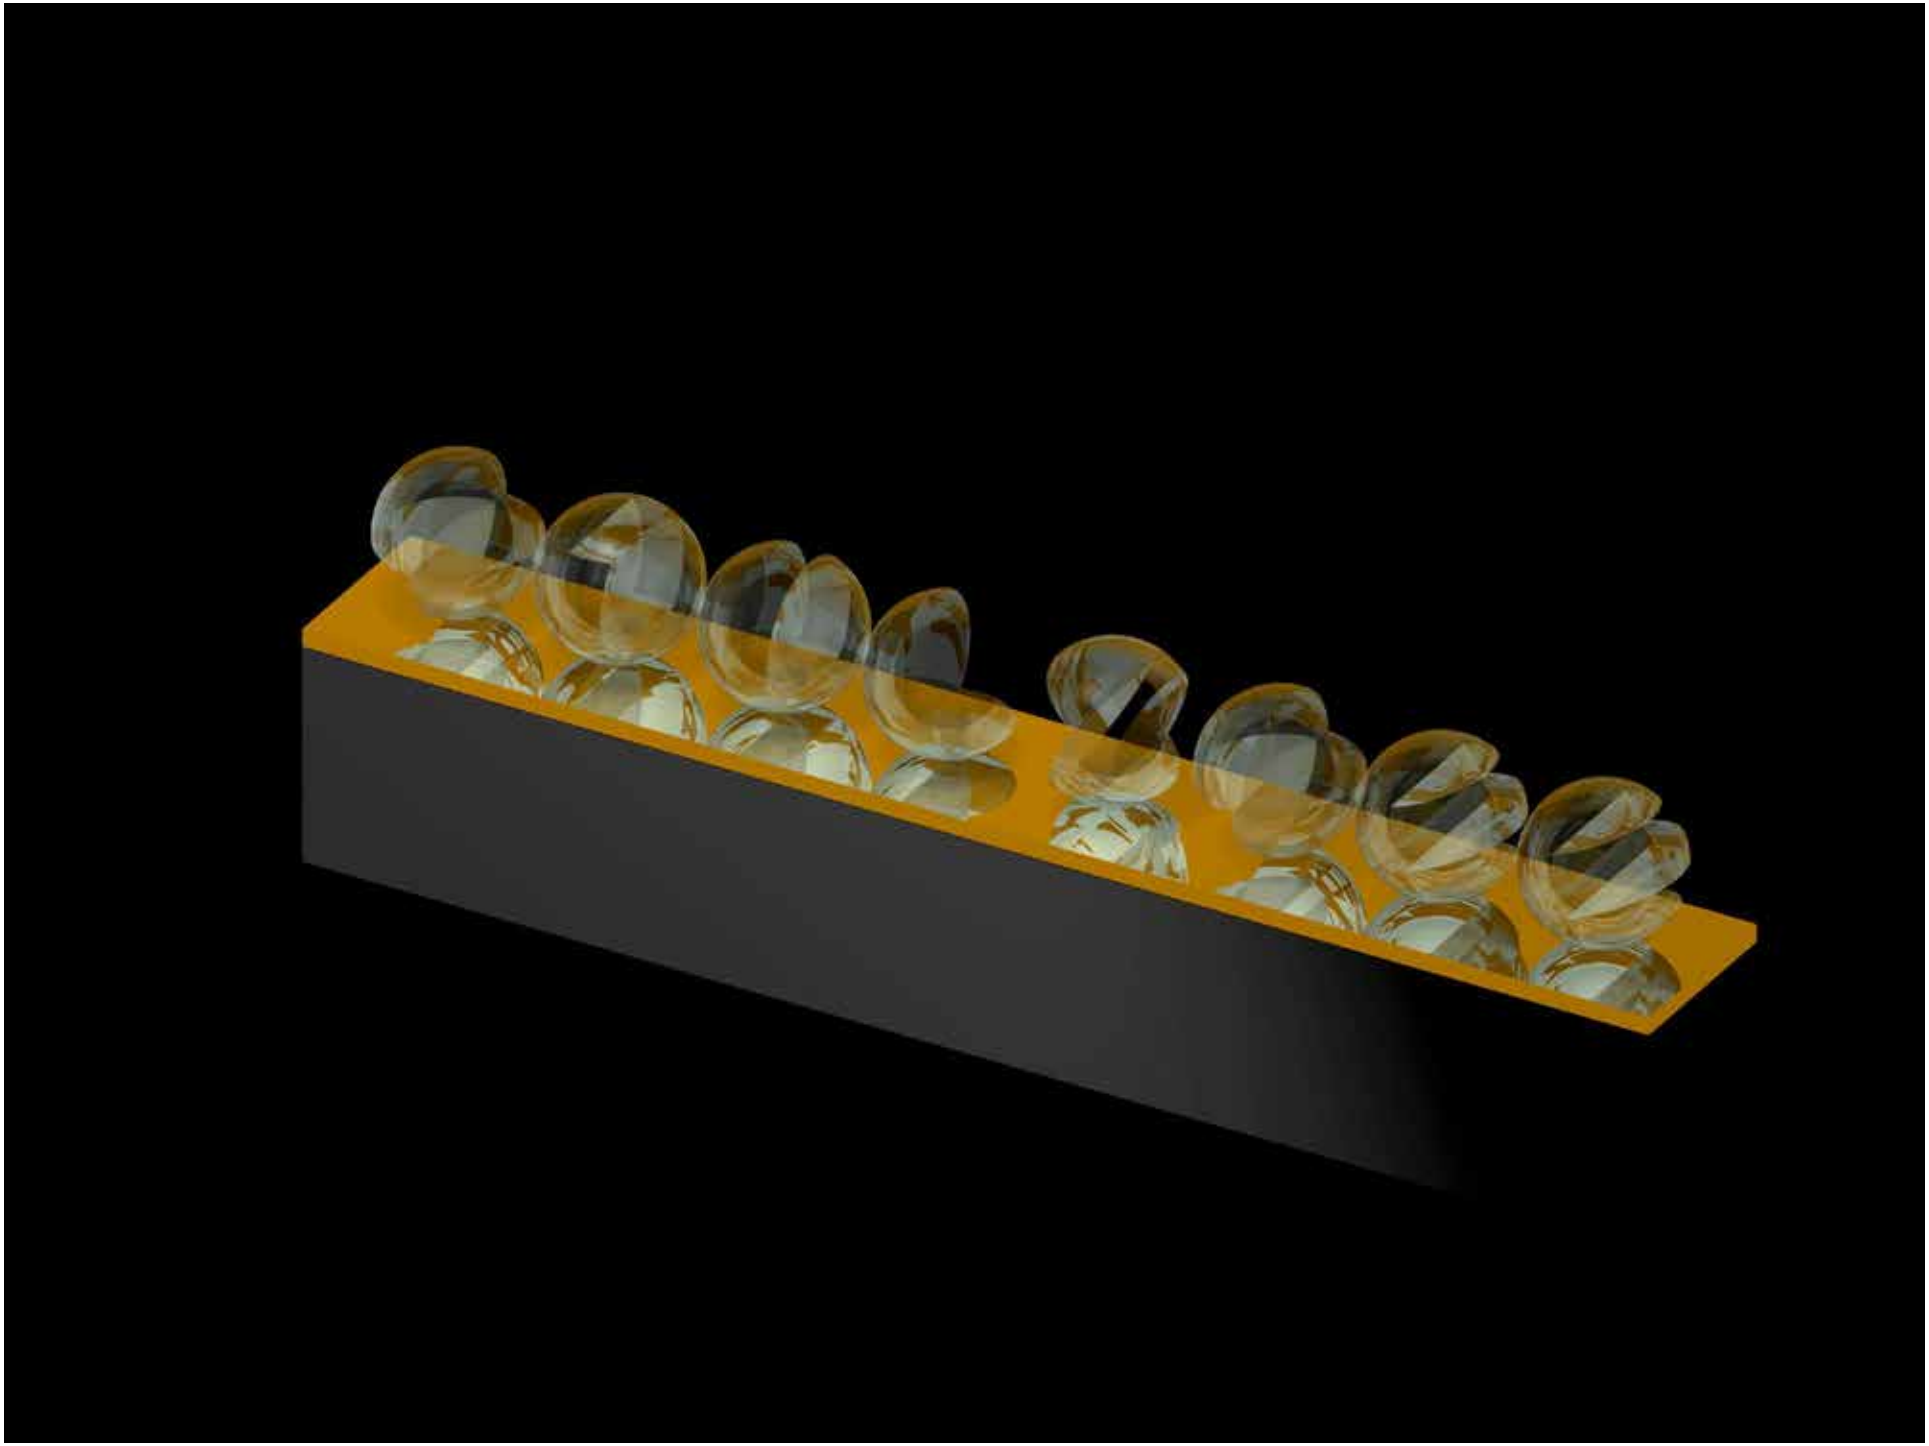


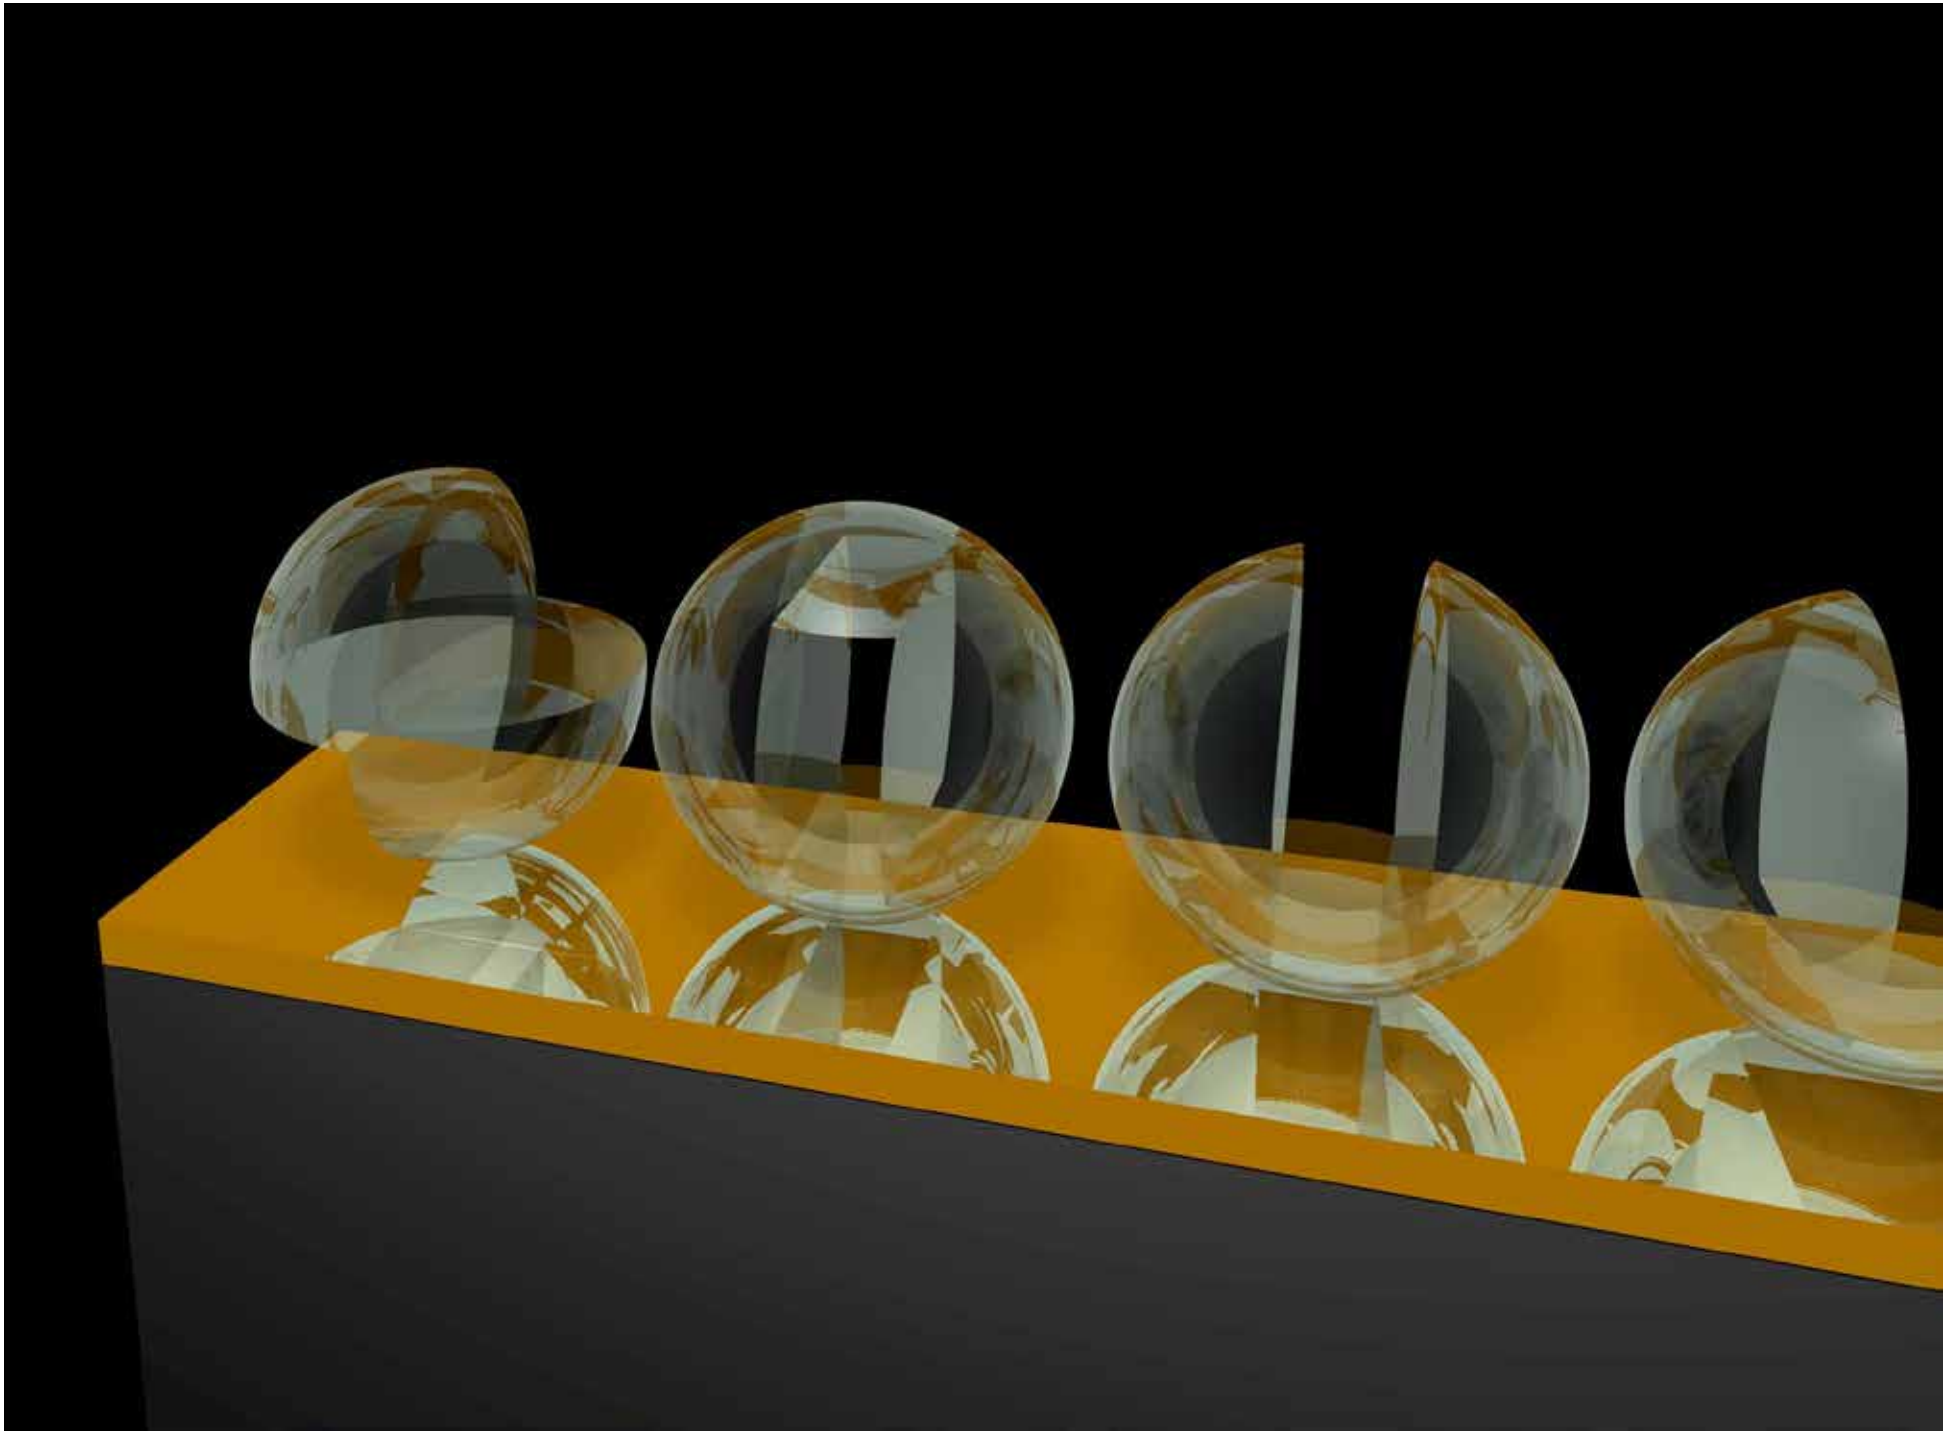
SOUZEE











This was a first model where I used black opaque glass.

I put some background in to see the reflections and shadows.

Looked too much like bowling balls.

The type concept may not work at all, just a try.
Just a few thoughts after the coffee house.
I thought your prototypes were great, they were alive with energy.
I then made a list of steps needed to start the project, but they seem to pale in hind sight, because I don't exactly know where to begin.
design or find clasp for chain ends, use sailboat technology:
find chain and or flexible material for lanyetts
design connectors for temples
design logo for temple and adds design stone ties for chain type materials create prototype glasses, frames, temple connecters, chains and attachments get copyright or trademark rights

If I begin to think about the solutions, my tendency is to approach the problem as if the design didn't exist, and I am starting new.
Now that isn't really a problem if no payment is do for the reboot of the idea.

I was a little slowed by the idea the the frames exist, in several forms. Therefore the attachments are add-ons, not all part of the design.
I really liked the glasses you were wearing!
All from scratch.
Colors exciting.
Designs exciting.
But a Gucci with perfume seemed too hard to grasp.
They only change the temples and price.

Did find there are magnetic or screw together clips. Magnetic would be fantastic, but need to redesign the cover, two cylinders joining doesn't make it.

There are other problems I couldn't address, like which stones need clasps. Which feathers to look at.
Which silver or metal medallions should we consider.
Let's say I had a kit of parts, all inclusive, from which I had to design a product (that would be easier) but doesn't leave room for the inspiration.
Let's say just for argument that we make a pair from scratch! Every decision going forward toward an end goal.
We define the goal and shoot for it.

Argentina.

It always seems to be on the verge of spontaneous combustion. It could have something to do with the geography and extreme climate — the glaciers of Patagonia on one hand, the beaches and Iguazú Falls on the other. Let's not forget it's a melting pot of Spanish, Italians, French, Germans and English. Then there's the beef, the wine, the architecture, and yes, the inflation too. It's strongly Catholic yet one of the first countries to legalize same sex marriage. The people look better than should be allowed. And then there's the tango.

These are some of the reasons people visit and never leave. It's why you'll find more lists and blogs about why it's the best country in the world.

We keep going back because we get colors and prints you won't find anywhere else. We go because it's bold, beautiful, traditional, and yet wildly untraditional. We go because it's Argentina.

The Animal Print Blouse (№. 4913). Sheer, silky, and very dressy. Point collar. Self-fabric covered buttons. Fitted waist darts. French bust darts. Straight hem with vents. Poly chiffon. Lined in body. Imported.

Women's sizes: 0 through 20.
Colors: Jaguar Print, Snakeskin Print.
Price: $119.

Glamour.

Men's trousers from 1940, adapted to a women's body.

Fluid, sensual, elegant silk twill.

(It drapes beautifully, moves one millisecond later than you move, then continues moving one millisecond after you've stopped.)

As every man who isn't dead yet has noticed, women who dress this way could never be confused with a man.

Glamour Pants (№. 1067). French zipper fly, four stitched-down front pleats, suspender buttons front and back. No waistband. Sits at natural waist. Four narrow belt loops. Two button-through double-welt back pockets and two off-seam vertical welt front pockets. 31" inseam.

Yes, glamorous. Imported.
Women's sizes: 0 through 20.
Price: $158.

The Twenties.

These are ones Harold Lloyd wore, casually walking along building ledges. Picasso wore them (when he was young). T. S. Eliot wore them (even though he was never young).

Women need a similar pair. To see clearly. To be clearly seen.

Distinguished Readers (№. 9937).

Magnifications: 1.5 (just enough). 2.0 (snaps printed word back into sharp focus). 2.5 (a little stronger). 3.0 (if your spouse is reading this for you). Imported.
Color: Faux Horn in Bone color with detailed pewter/silver rims.
Price: $79.

Sight and Seen.

This dress carries with it the burden of explanation.

They simply won't know what to make of you, wondering if their eyes are playing tricks on them.

If you are thin, this dress will positively make you look more thin, chic, feminine.

For sure there will be probing inquiries into supposed royal European lineage. Wandering eyes and silver tongued advances will certainly create a few scandals. You'll be asked if the current conversation is boring you to which you'll flippantly reply. "Not yet."

If you are not thin but more of the voluptuous persuasion, the kind men such as Renoir and Wiertz sought for artistic inspiration, this dress might overwhelm. We've seen it before. Decadent gifts of choux à la crème from the finest Parisian Patisseries. Privacy invading press. An over-abundance of social engagements.

The Optical Illusion Dress (№. 4441). 100% Polyester. Bra keepers. Invisible zipper in center back. Form fitting but with enough room to move. Below knee length. 1 1/2" blind stitched hem. Fully Lined. Imported.

Women's sizes: 0 through 20.
Color: Navy and White.
Price: $229.

Coup de Grâce.

The French are incapable of leaving well enough alone. That's what we like about them.

Even their casual clothes have that little extra something.

A nip here, a tuck there. A button where you wouldn't expect to see one.

As evidenced by this shirt.

The culmination of two centuries of French experience with heat and humidity in places like Martinique and Saint Kitts.

Casual, but classy.

N'est-ce pas?

Mini Stripe Epaulette Shirt (№. 2963). Made from 100% yarn-dyed cotton, it has a crinkle finish that helps move air around and keeps the skin cool. Distinctive French styling includes two chest pockets with button flap, epaulettes, point collar, and shirttail hem.

Seven-button front with natural trocas shell buttons.

And the fine pinstripe lets you wear it out with jeans or tucked in with a tie. Imported.

Men's sizes: S, M, L, XL, XXL.
Color: Blue and White.
Price: $98.

Distinguished Gentlemen.

Face it, we get older. The eyes go. But there is hope. It's a well-known fact that distinguished men wear distinguishing eyewear.

Teddy Roosevelt was shot during a presidential campaign speech; the bullet stayed lodged in his chest, slowed in part due to his eyeglass case. Even so, he finished the speech.

He wore glasses like this.

Teddy Readers (№. 5198). The aluminum frame is lightweight and hypoallergenic. Adjustable nose pads. Hint: When your eyeline is above your eyewear people tend to pay attention. Imported.

Magnifications: 1.5 (just enough). 2.0 (snaps printed word back into sharp focus). 2.5 (a little stronger). 3.0 (if your spouse is reading this for you).
Color: Bronze.
Price: $79. (Bulletproof case not included.)
